OCTOBER 2015

*"Beloved, let us love one another,
because love is from God;
everyone who loves is born of God
and knows God."*

1 John 4:7

Dear Friend,

As we move into October we find that the reality of the ever shortening days begins to be noticeable, and then our clocks go back and we know we are set for a season of long dark nights. During that time we come to rely more and more on the lights around us.

We can experience similar things in our lives. Many of us, at some point in our lives, face what has been called the 'long dark night of the soul'. These are moments when the difficulties of life can become overwhelming, and we can feel as if we are continually enveloped in darkness.

And just as in the seasonal darkness we look for light to guide us and guard us, so too in the dark moments of our lives we should look for light. It is in these moments that we discover just how precious is the light of Christ. His light is always there for us, and it will guide us and guard us. All we need do is trust in His presence and in His abounding love for us.

May you seek the light of Jesus in your life, and may He be your guard and your guide each and every day.

In His name,
Martyn
